

Ama-zing Harmonies Newsletter:

October in Review

We are happy to announce new funding:

The University of Edinburgh Community fund has agreed to help us purchase new keyboards to help youth in the North-West learn. Their grant is also helping us fund our digital activities in order to keep us singing and learning online during these times apart. We are grateful for their support and look forward to seeing you all digitally thanks to them!

THE UNIVERSITY of EDINBURGH

The National Lottery has awarded us with another year of the Community Trust fund to help Ama-zing Harmonies continue to create projects and help our community. We are thankful that they are supporting us again this year! Their support is tremendously helpful in allowing us to offer music opportunities and it is a great support for our community.

Music Instrument Programme:

The new term of Tinderbox keyboard and guitar lessons are underway, with 11 students learning with Sam and Jenny on Monday evenings over Zoom. We'll be learning lots of different pieces over the next few weeks, and so far have looked at Someone You Loved, Jingle Bells and Mary Had a Little Lamb. We're hoping to put together a video by the end of term, so keep your eyes peeled for that!

TINDERBOX

Tinderbox Open Mic Nights:

Tinderbox has been running open mic nights through Zoom on Tuesday evenings for people who feel like playing their favourite songs or just something they learned! Jed has said Ama-zing Harmonies members are more than welcome to join in.

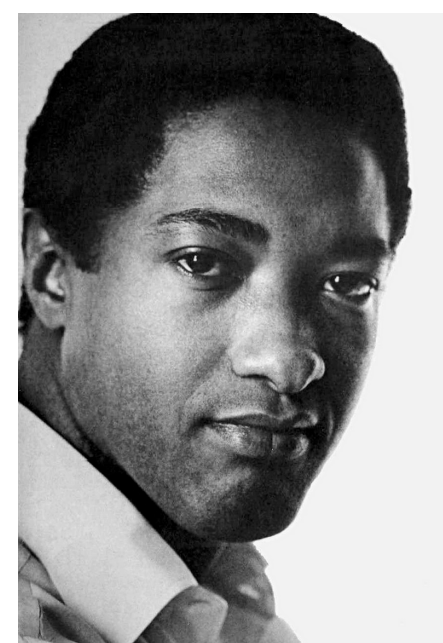

A Call for Ideas:

Ama-zing Harmonies is looking forward to a new year with new opportunities. We are in the planning stages for creating new projects and would like to hear from members of the community on what music opportunities and projects they would like to see in the North-West in 2021.

Our Newest Cover!:

Our adult members have been hard at work creating a new cover to lighten your spirits in time for Christmas. The submissions are in and we are excited to send them to our producer next week! We can't wait to see how this turns out, make sure you look out for our release on youtube at the start of December!

Community Cookbook:

Submissions have started to roll in and they are looking delicious! If you have a recipe that reflects who you are, we'd love to include it.

Please send any submissions to Dave at admin@ama-zingharmonies.org.uk

We're hoping to share these wonderful recipes in time for your holiday cooking. Keep an eye out for these treats!
